

Committed to Quality

At Owen we are committed to providing sincere service with a touch of something special. This year we added a new funeral fleet to continue as a front runner in funeral care. Our limousine and coaches offer a dignified way to collectively journey with a loved one to their final resting place.

“When my mother, Edith Owen, died we said our final farewells by having her funeral procession drive by where she and my father, Bird Owen, first opened Owen Funeral Home’s doors on Virginia Avenue.

The funeral procession was our way of honoring my parents and their heart felt commitment to funeral service. In providing the new Owen fleet, I hope families take pride in honoring their loved ones in such a dignified way.”

Funeral Procession Etiquette

- Arrive early. You'll probably be close to the front of the procession if you are a family member or close friend.
- Owen Staff will greet and line your vehicle in the procession line and place a flag on your vehicle.
- Turn on your lights and flashers before you get on the road with the procession.
- Follow the lead and don't speed, keeping no more and no less than a car length or two between you and the car in front of you.
- Stay vigilant at traffic lights. Funeral processions have the right away, but other drivers may not yield.
- Stay in the procession line. Don't try to take a shortcut to the gravesite.
- Speak softly. When you arrive at the burial site, keep your voices down out of respect.
- Watch the funeral director. If you are ever in doubt about what to do, turn to the person coordinating the event for clues.

Why Plan My Funeral In Advance?

It is difficult to think about one's own funeral. Almost everyone would agree that making funeral arrangements of a loved one is one of the hardest things you will ever do. But think about how difficult these decisions are when in the depths of mourning a loss. There are as many as 125 tasks, vital statistic information to be collected, and decisions your family must make on the hardest day of their life.

We can help make this easier for your family. Most of these decisions can be made in advance and the vital information can be recorded, thus removing a significant burden from your family. Preplanning allows you to consider all your options, express your own wishes and soften the emotional pain your family will experience. It also allows you to answer tough questions like

“who will arrange my funeral?” “who will pay for my funeral?” and “how hard will that be for them?”

We offer many ways to fund your funeral in advance. Prefunding eliminates the financial burden that falls on your family. It also eliminates emotional overspending that can take place at the time of death, protecting your other assets and keeping your life insurance intact for your family's needs.

Prearranging also gives your loved ones peace of mind knowing that they are following your wishes. This allows them to focus on their memories rather than all the details of making the funeral arrangements. There is also comfort in knowing you have given your family a great gift of love by relieving their burden during such a difficult time.
